BANGOR WHIG.

THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1839.

STEAM PACKETS. A large and respectable meeting was held in Boston on Saturday last in relation to the contemplated line of steam ships between Liverpool and Boston via Halifax. It appears that Mr. S. Cunard, of Nova Scotia, has made a contract with the British Government, for the transportation of mails from Liverpool to Halifax, twice a month, for which he is to receive from that government £50,000 per annum.

Mr. Cunard proposes to extend the line to Boston, touching at Halifax, long enough only to exchange mails and passengers. The keels of three steamers of 1100 tons and 420 horse power, are now laid, and no expense will be spared to make these boats equal to any vessel now afloat.

The meeting in Boston was addressed by a number of gentlemen, after which the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved. That we regard the establishment of a line of Steam Packets between Liverpool and Boston, as tending greatly to advance the prosperity of the city, by increasing the facilities for the direct importation of merchandise from England, as making this port an extensive depot for the receipt of cotton and naval stores for foreign shipment, and the favorite resort from the South, the West and the East, as well for embarkation for Europe, as for the purchase of goods; and, finally, as a measure destined to promote our rapid growth in population, in commerce and in wealth.

Resolved. That while we rely upon the justice of the British nation, and the intelligence of our own, for a speedy adjustment of the questions which have recently disturbed our frontiers, we regard this enterprise as a harbinger of future peace, both with the mother country and the Provinces, being persuaded that frequent communication is the most effectual mode to wear away all jealousies and prejudices which are not yet extinguished.

Resolved. That the Port of Boston is indicated by nature, and the whole course of our internal improvements, as the most eligible point for connecting the United States by steam navigation with England. First, because a direct line from Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, to England, passes through our suburbs; second, because cheap and expeditious communication by railroads and internal steam navigation exists along this line; third, because the completion of our Great Western railroad will, in the course of a few months, enable the traveller to reach Boston as soon as New York from Albany, Utica, Rochester, Oswego, Buffalo, Detroit, Louisville, St. Louis, Kingston, Toronto, and Montreal, and upon his arrival in Boston he will find himself 220 miles nearer to Liverpool than when at New York.

Resolved. That it is of the highest importance to the success of this great enterprise that the larger class of steam packets should run entirely through Liverpool to Boston, and vice versa, stopping sufficient time at Halifax for the reception of fuel and to receive and discharge passengers and freight; that this arrangement alone will inspire confidence in the safe and uninterrupted conveyance of passengers and goods, and secure a liberal and ample patronage of the route.

¶ The chief brawlers, noisier partisans and most influential managers of the Jackson party were among the men who were horror stricken at the single defalcation of poor Watkins for a few hundred dollars, during Adams' administration. These same men now are among the foremost to stifle investigation into frauds for millions that have been committed upon the Government for eight years past. They can look on now with complacency and see the country suffer, and lend their aid and influence for the triumph of the scoundrels. Defalcations for enormous amounts have taken place under the very eyes of the Executive, and they have been winked at until exposure could no longer be prevented, and then the partisans of the administration, instead of condemning the conduct of their rulers, have resisted investigation. Such things ought not to be tolerated, but yet they are, and even worse. It appears by Woodbury's own showing, that there have been sixty cases of defalcation known to the Government, and the defaulters continued in office. There are cases, too, proved by the same chieftains, by documents extorted from the Department by Congress, of the renomination to office of men known to be defaulters. And these cases have been in every part of the land, and in all offices. Is not this a proper subject of alarm? Will the American people rest easy under such a system as this?—such wholesale corruption and inefficiency?

Unproductive Land. A New Jersey paper states that there are lands in that State which will not support three whippoorwills to an acre, any way you can fix it, under the best cultivation.

"This is poorer land than the locofoco, last year represented the Aroostook to be, then they said it was nothing but "Eighteen Thousand acres of bog." But since the People have been up there, it has improved amazingly. Now the Democrat says it is the "best land this side of the line." Hereafter, probably, they will transfer the "bog" north of the St. John, being the territory they have surrendered.)

¶ The Hudson Chronicle says it may have been difficult for old Brad to follow the pendulum of the clock for an hour, repeating at every tick "he goes, there she goes," but how much more difficult for a man of ordinary agility to follow with his finger each abounding Locomotive! Bob Treasurer, exclaiming as he runs, "Here he goes, there he goes!" We would stake fifty that old Brad himself couldn't go that, provided he extended the time to Van Buren's four years.

Original Paintings of Clark & Webster and Calverley are now exhibiting in New York. The proprietor, we understand, has in contemplation to visit this city. We should judge that such paintings, which have met with universal commendation everywhere, could be generally and liberally patronized by our citizens.

CITY AFFAIRS

COUNCIL COUNCIL, April 22, 1839.

Orders passed and sent up for concurrence. Directing the Treasurer to receive of the Collector the wheat and corn certificates, issued last year by the City, on account of his collection of Taxes; directing a joint select Committee to report early on the expense of four additional Reservoirs building a side walk on Pine street which was returned indefinitely postponed, and so required in.

Remonstrance of Ebenezer French et al., and of citizens of Orono, against removal of the Rail Road Track on Harlow street, with the Report of the Committee to whom the subject was referred, were recommitted, with instruction to report addressee to the Prayer of the Petition the year and day being called for, were 10 to 7 for instructing sent up.

Communication came down from Alderman Valentine, resigning his seat in that Board.

Report of Committee on City Printing passed in concurrence, having contracted with Edwards & Smith, to do the same.

Report accepted in concurrence, of Committee on Accidents and Casualties.

Resolve passed to be engrossed, establishing the salaries of the several City Officers; and negative finally passed for a loan of $2000.

Communication of Wm. Abbot, from Committee on Girls' Schools, for division of the Girls' High Schools, or increase of Teacher's salary, referred to Committee on Public Schools in concurrence.

Adjourned to Monday, 29th, at 2 o'clock.

CONNECTICUT. The Hartford Courant has received returns of elections for Representatives in all but four towns, which have the right to elect four members of the House of Representatives, and the result is 111 Whig, 4 Congregationalists, and 90 Locofocos, will be returned as elected, though the seats of two at least of the Locos will be contested. The towns of Windsor, Middletown, and Coventry, have dissolved their meetings, and will not be represented.

¶ BRITISH OUTRAGE. The schr. W. J. Pardee, Forsyth, on her passage from Ogdensburg to Oswego, on the 12th, while passing Brockville, was deliberately fired upon by the sentry there stationed. The ball was seen to skip along the water close under the vessel's bows. The same sentry, or another soldier who was with him, as soon as the piece could be re-loaded, fired again, and as Capt. Forsyth places, in direct range of his person. The steam boat U. States had also been fired upon. Col. Young, a British officer at Prescott, had been called upon for explanation, who stated his regret at the circumstance, but added that the result of his court of inquiry had been wholly nugatory, as he had not been able to discover who had fired upon the boat.

¶ The rumor of yesterday in relation to the Aroostook boom, we have since learned, is incorrect. The boom was not carried away, but was slightly damaged by the freshet.

¶ The elections in South Carolina take place on the 2d Monday in August. In Alabama, Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri, on the 1st Monday in August, and in Tennessee on the 1st Thursday in August.

¶ Here is a good thing from the Southern Sun, in the shape of a ditty. We trust some of our subscribers will read it, and that they and we may profit by it.

To our PATRONS. Last Tuesday's "Sun" numbered "52." Our first volume is completed. We agreed to edit and print a weekly paper from the 17th of March, 1838, for the public; for the sum of five dollars, if paid in advance, or six dollars if payment were not made until the end of the year. Reader! part of this contract has been faithfully complied with. Has your obligation been discharged? If you owe us six dollars, let us have it as soon as the mail can bring it. We want money, we are DUNNED, SUED, HARRASSED, and all because you will not pay us what you owe. A business which promised us a profit has become dead loss by your delinquency. Of course our distant subscribers can pay us or not, just as they please; for we shall never send a collector to them. The expense of an agent would far exceed the sum he would get by dunning. Your honesty, dear sir, is our only guarantee for payment. We think we can logically demonstrate that every subscriber will pay, and that very soon; but then logical conclusions may not bring more substantial results than the mere penning of them. However, here is our demonstration: All Whigs are honest (nothing more true) all honest men, who are also, pay their just debts. (that's equally true.) All of our subscribers are Whigs. Being Whigs, they are honest being honest, they will pay us. Therefore, we shall lose none of our debts. Having thus satisfied ourselves that our dues will be speedily forthcoming, we shall to-morrow procure a large, new pocket book, and carefully make deposits of our revenue as it comes in. It will not be surplus revenue; for it is only to pass through our hands to those we owe.

GROGN BEEF. A London paper gives the following receipt for preparing this pleasant beverage: Fill a bottle with pure cold water, then have a cork ready to fit it, also a string or wire ready to tie it down with, and a mallet to drive the cork so no time may be lost; now put into the bottle sugar to your taste syrup, is better add a tea spoonfull of good powdered ginger, shake all well, then add the sixth part of an ounce of super carbonate of soda cork tightly and tie down, shake the bottle cut the string the cork will fly then drink ginger beer.

To take Grease out of Silk. If a little powdered magnesia be applied on the wrong side of silk, as soon as the spot is discovered, it is a never failing remedy, the dark spots disappearing as if by magic.

Our Passions. We are all like Adam in his "post 54-3" he was, but now the attack of doubt, and the first setting of our sun, and the setting of the sun of our world. We shall be friends as if there were no better society, and we will continue so as if there were no better society but for all our passions are born Atheists and Infidels.

We found the following in the New Bedford Mercury, and credit it to the Sandwich Island Gazette:

"The Gallie of the 6th is shrouded with black lace in token of respect for the Rev. Mr. Buchelot, Apostolic Prefect of the Sandwich Islands, who died on his passage from the Sandwich Islands to the Island of Ascension.—Mr. B. was a native of France, and commenced his labors at the Sandwich Islands in July 1827, under the authority of Pope Leo XII, but the labor of the Protestant missionaries proving more acceptable both to the natives and to the government.—Mr. B. was induced to take the departure in Dec. 1831, when he proceeded to California, and remained at that place during several years. His return to Honolulu in April 1837, gave occasion to a renewed opposition, and he was finally again compelled to take his departure, and died on his passage."

A number of the same paper of a previous date, states that three Catholic missions have recently been commenced in the islands of the South Pacific, viz.—St. Wallis' Island, at the Island of Fortune, and at New Zealand.

A series of "Linear notices," relating to the island of Waianae, furnish a rare medley of the graphic and humorous in description. We subjoin a few extracts:

"The majority of the houses in Kailua are built with the stones for the rough walls, often broken and some few of dried瓦斯; they are neat, clean, and commodious, and have more substantial and comfortable appearance than the houses of Honolulu. Besides the native houses there are some edifices in Kailua constructed in the European style.

The church, as a public edifice, seems to stand first on the hill, although its extremely unequal appearance makes it difficult of description. All we can say of it externally (we did not see the inside of it,) will not add much to the reputation of the architect who planned it, either in point of taste or judgment. A huge oblong stone building, with very high walls, and diminutive windows, a tower large enough for the principal town of a populous country village, surrounded by a zig-zag, indescribable belfrey, in which a tiny bell seems hung as the emblem of solitude over the belfrey a knitting needle spire supports a hideous shaped bird of gigantic dimensions, which was said to have been made in imitation of a rooster; to our view it exhibited no particular resemblance to any thing animate or inanimate, with which we had before met with in our travels far and wide.

Passing the church is a wide and beautiful street, and directly opposite to it, stands a new stone building, not yet completed, belonging to the Governor John Adams Kuakini. It is intended for a mansion house, and is in all respects the most splendid building in the Sandwich Islands. It is two stories in height with a garret above, has a beautiful front with a portico and spacious yard around it; the interior of the house is splendidly finished with wood, of the most beautiful appearance, equal, if not superior, to mahogany. The house of the Governor betrays an intimacy with good taste, and passion for modern improvement in the part of its proprietor.

Judge of our surprise on finding at Kailua a cotton factory, with two looms and twenty spindles. These looms were in operation, and a great proportion of the spindles. These were all worked by hand; the spindles were attended by children and small girls. A foreigner, in whose charge were the looms, told us that three pieces of cotton cloth had been manufactured, in length of from thirty-six to forty yards each; they were of a good quality, and strong fabric. Of the two pieces in the looms on the days of our visit, one was a piece of twilled striped cloth, the first piece of striped, ever made in the factory; and it bids fair to become an encouraging specimen of the sort of cloth it was made to imitate.

We attempted to walk about Kailua, and succeeded only in waddling in consequence of the dust. Saw natives building canoes, and in various other employments, but far less idle, strolling, lounging, losing, yelling, singing, kite-flying, head-scratching, pork eating natives than in Honolulu. The largest portion of the male population were in the mountains searching for sandal wood.

We visited ship board in pursuit of a roasted turkey, (corn-fed by the Captain,) this turkey, it is recorded, did honor to his feeding, the cook did honor to the turkey, and the Captain and passengers did honor to the cook.

Boys on sticks of wood came along side of the ship; the little urchins were scarcely more than three or four years of age, yet they seemed quite unconcerned at a distance of nearly a fourth of a mile from the shore, dancing on the surface of the water like so many gulls. The Sandwich Islanders are decidedly amphibious, and are quite as much at home in the water as out of it.

We were informed that the tax of labor, imposed upon the natives of Hawaii, by Governor Adams, are exceedingly moderate; two days in every fortnight only being exacted. This arrangement affords the population an inducement to be industrious; whereas at Oahu more than double that time is devoted to labor for the government, or upon the new stone church. Moderate taxation should be strenuously recommended to the Governors and Chiefs at this crisis of national poverty.

Called this afternoon, (August 12th) in company with a friend, at the house of the Rev. Mr. T., of the mission; though a stranger to this gentleman we were most kindly and hospitably entertained, at the hour of tea we were summoned to the family table, where we partook of the frugal and wholesome fare spread before us, in the society of Mr. and Mrs. T. and their two amiable daughters.

"The Harbour." The ships come tumbling in, but the harbour will hold more of them, and Oahu is quite ready to welcome more than it will hold. We hear of many ships expected, and have the grace to wish to get the first glimpse of the masters, pacing the quarter deck, with smiling faces, and oil enough below to induce them to venture to run aground of our subscription list without damage."

ADVENTURE IN A MAD HOUSE.

The following most extraordinary event happened in Lincolnshire, in the autumn of 1804, and may be relied on as a matter of fact. No better illustration of what has preceded could be introduced. The violence of a fall deprived Sir Henry F. of his faculties, and he lay entranced several hours; at length his recollection returned. He suddenly exclaimed, "Where am I?" and looking up, found him in the arms of a venerable old man; "fear not, yonder house is mine, I will support you to it; there you shall be comforted." Sir H. expressed his gratitude; they walked gently to the house. The friendly assistance of the old gentleman and his servants restored Sir H. to his reason; he was considerably fatigued, and his faculties were re-organized; at length he awoke, and repeated his former declaration. I. H. was now in full possession of his faculties, and he accepted the invitation, and was shown into a large hall, where he found sixteen persons; the party consisted of as many persons no ladies were present. The old man took the head of the table; an excellent dinner was served, and rational conversation gave a zest to the repast. The gentleman on the left, Sir H., asked him to drink a glass of wine, when the old man in a dignified and authoritative tone, at the same time extending his hand, said "No!" Sir H. was astonished at the singularity of the check, yet, unwilling to offend, remained silent. The instant dinner was over, the old man left the room; who one of the company addressed him in the following words: "By what misfortune, sir, have you been unmercifully prepared by that unfeeling man who has quitted the room? O, sir! you will have ample cause to curse the fatal hand that put you in his power, for you have no prospect in this world, but misery and oppression, perpetually subject to the capricious humor of that old man; you will remain in this mansion for the remainder of your days; your life, as mine is, will become burdensome, and driven to despair, your days will glide on with regret, and melancholy reflection, in cold and miserable scenes. This alas! has been my lot for fifteen years; and not mine only but the lot of every one you see here, since their arrival in this cursed abode!" The pathetic manner that accompanied this cheerless narrative, and the singular behavior of the old man at dinner, awoke in Sir H. a breast sentiments of horror, and was lost in stupor some minutes, when recovering, he said, "By what authority can any man detain me living thus?" "I will not quit you," said Sir H., "I will oppose him, force to force, if necessary." "Ah, sir!" exclaimed a second gentleman, "your argument is just—but your threats are vain; the old man sir, is a magician we know it by trial; he has the power of making us do as he pleases." "For God's sake, do not go!" The servant told Sir H. he had nothing to fear, and begged he would follow him to his master; he did, and found the old man seated at a table covered with a dessert of wine; he arose when Sir H. entered the room, and asked pardon for the apparent rudeness he was under the necessity of committing at dinner; "For," said he, "I am Doctor Willis; you must have heard of me; I confine my practice entirely to cases of insanity; and as I board and lodge insane patients, mine is called a mad house." The persons you dined with are madmen, I was unwilling to tell you before dinner, fearing it would make you uneasy; for although I know them to be perfectly harmless, you very naturally might be apprehensive." The surprise of Sir H. on hearing this was great; his fears subsided, the doctor and Sir H. passed the evening rationally and agreeably.

HINTS TO EDITORS.

"Old, but not misty."

One reader cries your strain's too grave,

Too much morality you have,

Too much about religion;

Give some witch and wizard tales,

Of slip-shod ghosts with fine end scales,

And leathers like a pigeon.

I love to read, another cries,

Those monstrous, fashionable lies.

In other words, those novels,

Composed of kings, and priests, and lords,

Of border wars, and Gothic hordes,

That used to live in hotels.

No, no, cries another, we've had enough

Of such compounded love-sick stuff

To gaze the fair creation:

Give us some recent foreign news,

Of Russians, Turks, the Poles, or Jews,

Or any other nation.

The man of dull scholastic lore,

Would like to see a little more

Of first-rate scraps of Latin;

The grocer fain would learn the price

Of tea and sugar, fruit and rice;

The draper silk and satin.

A witty anecdote or pun,

A riddle or riddle;

MILITARY SCHOOL.

THE undersigned has the pleasure of announce-ing to his military friends and the public, that he has engaged the THEATRE and had it properly fitted up for the purpose of more conveniently

accommodating his School with suitable apartments

for drill and study.

The School is kept on Monday and Wednesday evenings, 1st & Friday afternoon of each week, commencing at precisely half past seven o'clock in the evening, and half past two o'clock in the afternoon.

TERMS $6.00 per quarter $2.00 each month in advance. The School has been kept three weeks, and the subscriber wishes to his friends his thanks for their encouragement, and hopes to merit and receive more extensive patronage, which will enable him to give better accommodations, and greater facilities for rapid advancement to his Scholars.

Officers and Soldiers of the Daugh-ent, lately

in naval service, are particularly invited to join the School or to visit the School while they are in the City.
